LONGFELLOW SCHOOL DAMAGED BY FIRE

TOTAL LOSS IS PLACED AT $15,000

Boiler Room in Basement Believed to Have Been Origin of Fire in School Building Friday Evening

FIRE DAMAGE CONFINED TO EAST SECTION OF BUILDING

Building Reported Covered by Insurance to the Amount of $18,000

DAMAGE to the extent of between $12,000 and $15,000 was incurred at the Longfellow school building, sixth and Vine streets, Friday night when fire originating in the basement spread to the two floors and into the attic of the building. The alarm was turned in at 7:50.

While the flames had gained too much headway when the department arrived to name the exact cause of the fire, Chief McGilchrist of the fire department, was unable to give other origin than that of the boiler room in the basement. Officers of the department were bewildered over the fact the flames had gained such headway before the alarm was given.

It was learned vocational school classes were not in session Friday evening and that the building was not otherwise occupied.

From the room in which the boiler plant was located, it was explained that the flames were pulled over to an air shaft running to the attic. That the draft in the air shaft to the upper floors proved favorable to the flames and aided in their rapid spread was the opinion of fire officials today. With numerous brick partitions which served as a check, little damage was done to the basement.

In viewing the destruction today, it was evident that the flames were confined largely to the east side of the building, the floors and ceiling of the machine and bench rooms in that section being destroyed, with only water damage sustained in rooms to the west. All books and records in the east rooms were destroyed.

Floors Cave in Both floors in the east section of the building caved in as a result of the fire and the heavy equipment placed upon them. Considerable woodwork throughout the entire building was charred by the flames. In the attic the fire made the most progress to the west section of the building, clearing the rafters and floor and spreading to the dormer window on the west roof. The fire department was handicapped to a large extent in fighting the fire because of the tin roof, which served to confine the flames within the building.

While it was impossible to determine the loss within close figures Saturday morning, in taking the equipment into consideration, the loss was estimated at between $12,000 and $15,000. It was announced that the building was covered by insurance to the amount of $18,000.

Will Be Repaired

That the Longfellow school will be repaired and continue to be used for school purposes, was the declaration of members of the board of education after viewing the building today.

"The school board will meet Monday," said President William Lundberg, "to determine what action should be taken to provide accommodations for the vocational and public school pupils who have been attending the Longfellow school."

The vocational school board is meeting this afternoon.

The Longfellow school for several years has been used almost entirely for vocational school purposes. Only during the present school years, since the Washington school was demolished, have two grades been accommodated in the Longfellow school.

The Longfellow school is 45 years old. Last summer $11,000 was expended in repairs and improvements. A new furnace was installed at that time.

President Lundberg said the fire department did a splendid job in containing the fire largely to the east side of the building.

CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS TO PUSH ENACTMENT OF WAR BONUS LEGISLATION

PARENT-TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION FAVORS CLOSING OF STREET

President of Association Advances Arguments for Closing of Winnebago Street

CALLS ATTENTION TO LACK OF ADEQUATE PLAYGROUNDS

Street Closing Would Enhance Value of Property

THE question of closing Winnebago street between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets to provide additional space for playground purposes, it became known Saturday, is receiving the full-fledged support of the Parent-Teachers' association of the Hogan school.

In citing benefits and advantages gained in the event of its passage in the common council of the city, N. M. Stornmont, president of the Parent-Teachers' association of the Hogan school, stated Saturday the location is ideal for a community center in that part of the city.

Mr. Stornmont called attention to the lack of adequate playgrounds neighboring the public schools here, adding that the time for providing such necessities in the case of the Hogan school is at hand in view of the proposed street improvement in that block.

Natural Playground

Mr. Stornmont, representing the association at the Hogan school, pointed out the failure of permitting school children to play in the street, which is the case at the present time and also called attention to the natural play of the plot for a playground.

To meet the existing crowded condition at the Hogan school, it was explained that an addition to the building will have to be made within a comparatively short time. In this event it was pointed out that the location for the new addition would be to the north of the present building. The construction of an addition of a size to accommodate the overflow of pupils would place the north extremity of the new building nearly to the line of Winnebago street, it was said. In view of this condition, advantages of closing the street were foreseen.

Enhance Property Value

Petitioners favoring the action argued that closing the street would rather enhance the value of neighboring real estate than decrease its valuation in view of the community center which would be created by closing the block.

GLENN ROBERTSON PAYS $200 FINE ON MOONSHINE CHARGE

Glenn Robertson, who pleaded guilty to a charge of manufacturing moonshine whiskey, at his home, 1016 South Front street, paid a $200 fine in Judge Brindley's court Friday afternoon. Robertson's home was raided by state prohibition officers last Tuesday. A still was confiscated. Robertson, who has a wife and nine children dependent on his wages as a candymaker, was given several days in which to get the money together to pay the fine and costs of $3.36.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS AGREE TO STAND PAT ON FIVE-FOLD BONUS

Will Neither Eliminate Cash Feature Nor Delay the Payments

FEEL PULSE OF PUBLIC ON HARDING SALES TAX PLAN

Discussion of Financing Features of Bill Put Over

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The soldiers' bonus issue continued Saturday a heated one, but its passage, the spiteful conflicting opinions, were determined to push legislation with renewed vigor.

Republican members of the house ways and means committee indicated that they had no intention either of eliminating the cash feature of the bill or of delaying cash payments until the amounts could be paid in installments. Suggestions in President Harding's letter along this line were virtually rejected, although definite action on the compensation features of the bill was deferred until Monday.

Representatives Fordney committee chairman, said following an all day session that the Republicans were in practical agreement that the five-fold plan of compensation should stand without material change.

Watch Reaction of Public

Discussion of the financing features of the bill was delayed until next week as the members might have the benefit of any reaction from the public resulting from the President's suggestion that the bonus be financed through a general sales tax or else postponed.

Meanwhile, organized labor and agriculture opened fire on the sales tax. Samuel Tompers, American Federation of Labor president, issued a statement declaring that the proposal to attach a sales tax to the bonus bill was "a subterfuge intended either to defeat the bonus or to create a feeling of resentment against the veterans by placing the burden upon those least able to bear it, and by permitting the escape of those who profited so relentlessly during the period of the war and since the war."

Farmers Join in Fight

T. C. Arkerson, representing the National Grange, denounced the sales tax as "defensible, wrong in principle and designed to shift the burden of taxation from those most able to pay to those least able to pay."

Mr. Fordney, on the floor of the house declared that the ways and means committee would report a bonus bill to a conference of Republican members within ten days and that the house would pass it. He did not specify how the measure would be financed.

LONDON.—Lord Dewart, at a meeting of the Layman Mission here, said profiteering has spread everywhere since the war, even into the Sudan, where it had extended to the price of wives.

"In the Sudan before the war," he said, "a wife could be got for four spear-heads. Now the price has doubled; one has to pay eight. In the cattle country it used to be four cows; now the price is seven."

ASSESSES TARIFF ON BASIS OF FOREIGN VALUE OF IMPORTS

WASHINGTON.—By The Associated Press.—The adoption of the Smoot plan of assessing tariff duties upon the basis of the foreign value of the imported articles is understood to have been practically agreed upon by republican members of the senate finance committee.

HARDING SEES NO REASON TO O. K. OBREGON

President Lets it be Known He Has No Intention of Resuming Relations With Mexico in Near Future

"INTERESTED" PERSONS TOO FREE WITH THEIR ADVICE

War Department Inclined to be Apprehensive Over Border Situation

WASHINGTON, D. C.—With rebel outbreaks at Juarez imminent and American army officials preparing to interfere if El Paso is endangered, President Harding let it be known Friday that there is no immediate prospect of resumption of official relations with Mexico.

There is less ground for optimism relating to the Mexican situation now than there was a few months ago, it is declared in official quarters, and disclosures have been made of interference in the matter by persons interested for both governments, who were not authorized to speak for either one.

Persons who have been assuming to speak for the American government in Mexico without authority are regarded by the president as "the greatest fakers and cheats in the world."

No Reason to Recognize

The president has kept himself intimately informed about the situation and concerning all that has been said of Mexican affairs and America's relations with Mexico. He feels, it is stated, that there really has been no change in the situation.

Some weeks ago the president believed a way had been found to bring about a restoration of normal official relations between the two countries. But when the "proposals" which had come to the American administration, presumably from the Mexican government, in an informal manner, were examined, it was found that there was no official authority for statements made and assurances given.

Tired of Gratuitous Advice

This government, President Harding has let it be known, is always prepared to take up any authorized proposal for the re-establishment of proper relations with Mexico, but he has no patience with spurious efforts to mend the situation.

It has been recognized by President Harding throughout his eleven months in the White House, as it was recognized by the Wilson administration, that there were such persons who assumed to speak for persons who were for the United States, and it is the president's feeling that such persons had their own personal interests to serve.

War department officials are admittedly apprehensive of the menacing situation at Juarez and keenly interested in a letter dated February 13 received from "an American official in close touch with the border situation."

This "General" is—Cautious

"Just a line to keep you informed," the message says. "The mass of Mexicans believe that the break here against Obregon is to be real in a few days and are much worked up, as is our department of justice, Mendez, the local general, is scared all most sick. He has sent his family away, and it seems that he has not slept in Juarez for the last two weeks, and never at night over there. He does his sleeping on this side."

"It is accepted in civil circles on both sides that in case there is any kind of a fight in Juarez there would be deliberate firing into El Paso—It has always been so."

War department officials confidently expect the American military forces will be compelled to interfere in the event of fighting in Juarez, across the river from El Paso. Brigadier General Howze, in command of the American border patrol, has more than 1,500 troops ready, it was stated, and understands that it will be his duty to prevent shots from falling on American soil.

Where Troops are Held

In addition to the 1,500 cavalry concentrated at El Paso there are nearly 2,000 more cavalry a short distance to the west and more than 5,000 men of the second division stationed at Fort Sam Houston. Two regiments of infantry are also dis-

Limerick Troops Refuse To Acknowledge New Government Pledge Loyalty To Republic

LIMERICK, Ireland.—(By The Associated Press.)—A proclamation was issued Saturday on behalf of the Mid-Limerick brigade of the Irish republican army refusing to recognize the present heads of the army or the provisional government and pledging allegiance to the existing republic.

LONDON.—(By The Associated Press.)—Peace seems for the moment to have again descended over Northern Ireland, the release of the remaining kidnapped unionists, announced Friday, tending to ease the tension. Both sides still hold prisoners, and it is understood the south is determined not to release the special constables captured at Clones until the Monaghan football players are freed by the Ulster authorities, the south contending that if the latter are guilty because they carried arms, the Clones captives are equally guilty.

Moreover, there is the question of the four Sinn Feiners held at Rathfriland, charged with "tumultuous assembly," growing out of disorders in connection with a republican funeral two weeks ago, and also that of the arrest of the three Irish republican army officers at Newry. A joint liaison commission is expected to function over the week end and to avert a clash between rival forces lined up along the Ulster border.

FIREMAN ON "Q" HELD AS ROBBER OF WIFE'S JEWELS

C. R. Mills Accused of Taking Wife's Rings and Ring and Cash of Another Woman

MRS. FOSTER'S DIAMOND RING GIVEN BY MILLS TO A GIRL

Jewelry Mysteriously Returned to Owners Through Mail

C. R. Mills, Burlington fireman, was arraigned before County Judge Brindley on Friday afternoon, charged with robbing his own wife and also with the theft of a diamond ring and $24 in cash from Mrs. Marian Foster, who, with her husband Nelson Foster, lived with Mr. and Mrs. Mills at 713 Mill street. Mills was held under $800 bail for circuit court.

The home of the two couples was raided on Feb. 2. Mills was seen at the house about noon on that day by Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Mills and, according to their testimony, was there when they left for the La Crosse Garment company's factory where both are employed. When Mrs. Mills returned later in the afternoon she found a note from Mills, stating that he had left for Pepin, Wis., to seek work. Mills returned home Feb. 4.

Rings Returned by Mail

Mrs. Foster, the first witness, testified that when she returned home she discovered that a dresser in her bed room had been ransacked and $25 in cash had been taken from a purse and also a small diamond ring and engagement ring had been taken. Mrs. Mills' wedding ring and another ring set with opals also was missing from Mrs. Mills' room. Mrs. Foster said that she advertised for the return of the rings on Feb. 3 and that on Feb. 13, her ring and Mrs. Mills' rings were returned to her through the mail, the rings being enclosed in an envelope addressed to her but containing no note or clue as to who sent them.

Mrs. Mills testified that she saw her husband about noon on Feb. 2 and again on the morning of Feb. 4. She declared Mills told her that he had been to Pepin, Wis., and to Minneapolis. Chief Webster testified that Mills had told him he had gone to Red Wing on the 5:15 Milwaukee passenger, walked across the ice to Nagar, Wis. the next day, then went to Pepin and returned home. Detective Sergeant Dincen testified that

WILL DEVOTE ENTIRE TIME TO BASEBALL

Resignation of Federal Jurist Announced in Court Saturday; Effective on March First

SERVED 17 YEARS AS FEDERAL JUDGE FOR NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Would Have Resigned Long Since But for Attacks by Senator Dial

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis Saturday announced that he had resigned from the bench and would devote his entire time to his position of baseball commissioner.

The resignation is effective March 1. Announcement of it was made by the judge Saturday as he took his place in court.

Effective March First

"There are not enough hours in the day for all of my activities," said the judge. "Therefore, I have forwarded my resignation as federal judge to Washington, effective March 1."

The judge then called the first case on his docket and refused to discuss the matter until court recessed. Judge Landis will have virtually completed seventeen years as judge for the Northern district of Illinois when his resignation becomes effective.

Rumors of the resignation have been current for months and intimate friends have known for some time that the action was imminent.

Wouldn't Resign Under Fire

It has been generally understood that Judge Landis would have resigned some time ago but for the attacks made on him by Senator Dial of South Carolina, on the notoriety brought through his handling the case of Willie Dalton, 17-year-old bank robber. On the verge of resigning when these things came up, the judge changed his plans, informing friends that he "would never resign under fire." Senator Dial had attacked the judge because of the latter's statement that bank officials sometimes were partly responsible for robberies by boys because they did not pay adequate salaries. Senator Dial and Representative Welby of Ohio later brought impeachment proceedings against the judge, the representative basing his case on the holding of two jobs by the judge. Both cases were dropped.

Shortly before Dalton robbed a local bank, Judge Landis had made his remark about the salaries of bank clerks in the case of a young Ottawa, Ill., bank employee.

Various newspapers had quoted Dalton as saying that he had committed his robbery because he felt, through Judge Landis' remarks, that nothing would be done to him. Dalton never said this and later in a signed statement said that he had never before heard of Judge Landis' remarks. The story had spread, however, and the judge was severely condemned as having made statements which were declared to have influenced Dalton.

Made Baseball Chief

The judge became head of organized baseball shortly after the grand jury investigation into the 1919 world's series scandal. He was offered $50,000 a year to take the post.

GUARD THY TONGUE

KEEP thy tongue from evil, and thy lips from speaking guile. Depart from evil, and do good; seek peace, and pursue it.—Ecclesiastes 3:1, 10, 11.

Wisconsin and Harding

WHAT does President Warren Gamaliel Harding stand for in Wisconsin?

He carried this state by a protest vote, and sort of reaction from the war. Its liberal press did not represent him as amounting to much. There was probably a rather broad feeling that he stood for party organization rather than for principle. He was a sort of a refuge from Wilsonism. Outside of that, his was not a personality crystallized in the minds of the public.

Since then comment of a personal nature relating to the president has been conflicting. One class of writers has pictured him as a sort of fashion plate. One may have recalled Montezuma, who dressed in gold and fine feathers, and never put on the same garment twice. Others represented him as common, a conventional middle-of-the-road chap, who possessed at best a somewhat polished mediocrity. That the latter description was intended to discredit him is often discernable in the tone in which it is uttered, but perhaps it has resulted in quite the contrary reaction. Most of us are not strikingly uncommon, and to be told that the president of the United States is "just folks", and that he addresses artisans as "Tom" and "Bill" in the streets of the little mid-western city where he has lived most of his life, seems calculated to accord a feeling of kinship. Perhaps any of us might call him "Warren" just like that, on better acquaintance.

But President Harding is coming to stand for something very substantial in Wisconsin. Very frankly he gives us the issue of war or peace, and he is on the side of peace. Viewing the work of the Arms Conference, many may say it would have been better to have accepted the League of Nations. The merits of that contention are not important, for what might have been is of less concern to us now, than what is and what may be. President Harding has been big enough to thrust aside the political barriers raised against progress in the League of Nations' fight, and to step boldly toward the place which his country must occupy in world affairs. Other steps may be necessary to complete the journey, but he has burned his bridges and stands facing the future. Confronted as he was by bitter and harrowing opposition within his own party, he displayed a high quality of courage in casting political expedience aside and moving in step with national and world necessity.

Many people are speculating upon what the issues will be in the congressional campaign which is approaching. There may be many minor issues, but they will be practically lost in the shadow of the one big issue. Senator La Follette has declared war upon the arms conference and the Harding treaties. By every resource within his power President Harding will defend them in Wisconsin as elsewhere. Between the two, Wisconsin must decide. The outcome here may not affect the results, for it is probable that as a whole, America will stoutly sustain the president. But irrespective of the decision, this will be the issue and on it the fight will be waged.

And before this contest is finished, President Harding will stand before Wisconsin in a new light. He will no longer be the available candidate chosen by expedience. He will be the new embodiment of a great principle. He will be the champion of world peace, and of an America conscious of its own destiny and responsibility to its obligations to civilization and humanity of the world over.

Russia

LENINE has invited the banished Russian intelligentsia to return. It is a step in line with the general swing of Bolshevik policy back to a limited capitalism, and perhaps toward some little sense of democracy.

But Russian intelligentsia in America declines the offer of repatriation. Of all its musicians and artists in this country, but one will return. For the most part they scorn the offer. They love Russia but they hate the Bolshevik regime, and perhaps there is something more substantial in the statement of one of them, that art and literature can not thrive upon an empty stomach. They are not forgetful of the horrors to which their class was subjected by the Lenin government, and even if they thought return was now safe, it is improbable that many of them would loan him their gifts to make his rule respectable.

Returning from China through Russia, Charles R. Crane, former ambassador at Peking, tells a story which illustrates Lenin's policy, touching these people. He met a composer of renown, who had abandoned his labors and lost heart. He lived on a crust in a garret. To honor Mr. Crane the composer called together a small group of the intelligentsia, and musical genius was made to supplement a meager dinner. Next day Mr. Crane called to thank the composer and bid him farewell. The apartment was empty and locked. Neighbors said soldiers had taken the musician away at an early hour, and that he would never come back. Trotsky's secret service, on the off chance of a conspiracy, had seized him, probably for summary execution. So the best blood and intelligentsia of Russia has been sacrificed to the disastrous rule of the proletariat. Russian exiles can hardly think cheerfully of a homecoming with these memories in mind.

The Fairbanks Threat

DOUBTLESS the public was interested in the statement by Douglas and Mary Fairbanks, that unless the American press adopted a less sensational tone toward the doings of professional filmdom, the business is apt to find more congenial quarters in another country. It is not so long since the Nevada affair of the Fairbanks, that they have fully recovered from a very personal dislike for publicity, but notwithstanding this episode, it is improbable that the American public classes them with the general run of Hollywood celebrities. In championing the latter, however, they seem to invite comparison, that one might have thought would have been odious to them, and their friends will especially hope that in their defense of the principal characters mentioned in the Taylor scandal they did not include one Roscoe Arbuckle.

Notwithstanding the depth of the mystery involved and the somewhat lurid conjectures of officials and newspapers, we have observed no evidence in the Taylor case involving the film stars so frequently mentioned in moral turpitude. Rather promiscuous love-making by the victim of the crime is indicated, but nothing to reflect discredit upon his women friends, unless it is discreditable for single women to receive the attentions of a gifted and adventurous bachelor. However, the atmosphere created by the incident is none too wholesome, and lovers of the pictures will be glad if in the end such damaging innuendo as has appeared shall eventually be discredited.

Meanwhile it would be better if film personalities refrained from indulgence in threats such as that to which Douglas and Mary gave voice. Publicity is not always pleasant, but it is productive of greater discretion if not of more discriminating morals, and were it not occasionally employed, such places as Hollywood might in time become what yellow journals delight in picturing them as being. America has been very good, and even a little bit charitable to Mary and Douglas, the attorney general of the state of Nevada to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Bamboo Box

BY ROSE MEREDITH

"Chinatown!" exclaimed Dorothea as the sight-seeing car stopped at the curb and they could look up and down the crooked streets and see, here and there, particularly small, China transplanted to the new world.

"At last we are in Chinatown—the next thing to visiting China it self," giggled Marguerite.

"Smells almost like it," agreed Willie, elevating his handsome nose. "You know I'm a lowdown," he added lastly.

"Where shall we go first?" the girls asked in unison.

"Home," said their escort timidly. "Did," snuffed Marguerite. "Come, Dorry, let us go into this darling little shop and buy things to take home."

Willie looked them to the narrow sidewalk and gleefully trailed them as they skipped down three steps and pushed open a narrow shop door.

A scanty-eyed yellow man popped up behind the counter and spread his long-nailed fingers on the neat counter. "What have?" he asked blankly.

Dorothea waved her hand airily. "Willie looked rounder, Sam," she said in what she thought was the Chinese language.

The shopkeeper shook his head violently. "No keep, laundry, no sale—maybe want tea?"

"Yes, tea," said Dorothea, nodding her head frantically. "Teapots and—tea."

More headshaking. "No chop suey, place—curry shop. Here teapots!" The Chinese indicated a shelf loaded with teapots of every size, shape and color.

Two or three Chinese customers turned to watch the Americans as they amiably wrangled over the question of what they should buy. At last their arms were filled with knobby packages, and the Chinese hoped expression had changed to one of fixed interest.

"Now you shall each choose a souvenir to take home," said Willie Weeks generously. "This is my tea, you know."

Dorothea's blue eyes went back to a curious bamboo box which was on the counter. The blue sleeve of a Chinaman who was buying joss sticks almost covered the article, but to Dorothea it was a thing of mystery; she imagined it might contain a silk shawl, perhaps a string of odd beads or some quaint treasure from the Orient.

"I like that bamboo box," she said quietly.

"I want one, too," echoed Marguerite. "It's darling! Let's not open them until we get home. Speak to him, Willie, before some one else buys them!"

The three of them crowded up to the counter and the other customers moved aside.

"Two of these boxes," said Willie Weeks, touching the bamboo box.

A Chinaman leaped from behind them and tried to snatch the box away from Mr. Weeks. He shrieked shrilly at them in words they did not understand.

"No can sell," protested the proprietor.

"Nonsense. It was on the counter. How much is it, anyway?"

"No can sell," said the man doggedly, while the shrieking Chinaman leaped frantically at the bamboo box which Mr. Weeks kept out of reach with clever sleight-of-hand tricks.

"Give me two like it," panted Willie.

"No more—not for sale!" there was a warning note in the man's voice.

"Choose something else, girls," Willie was saying, when Marguerite snatched the box from his fingers and dashed out of the shop. "Pay for it, Willie, and come home!" she tossed over her slim shoulder as she gained the sidewalk.

Dorothea followed her and Willie came after, with three Chinamen in hot pursuit, shrieking in ear-splitting tones that instantly crowded the sidewalk with an eager audience. At the corner two stout policemen gathered them all into one protesting group and bundled them off to the station house. The Chinese faces had smoothed as if by magic and the proprietor was eager to explain, but no one could understand what he did say when he talked.

"Can all that talk," said the desk sergeant wearily. "How much you want for the basket?" A malignant smile came into the face of the shopkeeper. "Twenty dollars," he said sulkily.

"Why?" ordered the sergeant.

"Willie Weeks paid it, laundry, sewing."

"Everybody beat it now!" commanded the law.

"Open the basket, miss." The policeman craned his neck at Marguerite as he spoke. Everybody else looked, but the shopkeeper and his friends drew close to the door.

The girls lifted the cover and stared. Everybody stared.

In the middle of the basket was a bowl of rice; on one side was a pair of common bone shopsticks and on the other side was a handful of dried beefsteak—that was all.

The shopkeeper stretched out a skinny finger toward his tall companion. "Belong all same him dinner box—" He turned and peeped out into the street, followed by his companions. They disappeared around the first corner, but Willie Weeks stopped on the steps and faced his two fair friends. Fearless laughter still echoed behind them. "I'm terribly hungry," sighed Dorothea, changing the subject.

"I wonder where we can find a chop suey—" began Marguerite hopefully, when Mr. Weeks thrust the open box under their pretty noses.

"If we eat anything it will be out of this," he said grimly. "I'm burst!"

MORGAN DISCUSSES
LAW ENFORCEMENT
AT RICHLAND CENTER

Declares Foundation of Government
Rests Upon Vigorous
Prosecution of Offenders

DEFINES LAW AS CRYSTALLIZED
JUDGMENT OF SOVEREIGN PEOPLE

Blow at Law Enforcement is a
Blow at Government

RICHLAND CENTER, Wis.—The impartial, fearless and vigorous enforcement of all laws is the foundation upon which the government of this nation rests and "is the one sure guarantee for the preservation of its liberties," Attorney General William Morgan declared in an address here.

Every one who defies the law, says to himself that he is above the law, the attorney general said. "That is his attitude," he continued, "the lawbreaker or hoodlum. He is a business man who profits through an illegal restraint of trade or a snook thief who pilfers from your purse. The issue in every case is simply: Is the violator above the law? Will we permit him to set the law at defiance and thus encourage a disrespect for all law?"

"Law may be defined as the crystallized judgment of a sovereign people, prescribing rules of human conduct to protect what is right and to punish what is wrong, and therefore he who lifts his hand against the law lifts his hand against the people."

"If a government of law is to successfully function it must command the respect and the confidence of all its citizens. When some laws are enforced and other laws are not enforced, public confidence in the government can no longer be maintained, for that is a step towards substituting a government of men for a government of law. To retain public confidence in the government it must never be questioned that the law does not treat all violators alike, without discrimination and without fear or favor."

From enforcing one law and not another it is but a short step to enforcing the law against some people and not against others, and that possibility needs only to be stated to convince every one that it would be an intolerable tyranny which would bring the government into contempt and undermine and destroy government of law."

"We must not think that because our republic has endured 178 years that it cannot be destroyed. One is not the first great democracy—it is the greatest but it is very young. The republic of Venice endured 1100 years, but fell. Carthage endured 700 years and Carthage was destroyed. Through all vicissitudes of their history the people of Athens maintained a democracy 900 years, but Athens crumbled, while Rome had a representative government 500 years, but Rome, too, lost its heritage."

"They fell, all alike, for the same reason, in their wealth and power they forgot the foundation upon which rested their prosperity—obedience to their laws; and the salutary laws framed by their fathers, which made for justice and clean and simple living, were disregarded."

"Organized society cannot long endure without laws which are enforced; that is the very bedrock on which civilization rests. Human intercourse without recognized rules of conduct would be endless strife."

"Every person is a part of the state. He holds in his hand a portion of the sovereign power. That is something for us to think of when the law is violated. We should keep constantly in mind that a blow at law enforcement is a blow at government. We are willing to fight for our country when it is attacked by a foe from without. Should we be less ready to protect her when our government is attacked by a foe from within?"

"The most priceless heritage which we have is this government, a government of the people, for the people and by the people. It rests upon the bedrock of law enforcement, respect for law. To put it in the words of Lincoln, reverence for law should be the political religion of this country."

"I subscribe to that statement of the immortal Lincoln, because I believe with all my heart and with all my soul that upon the sure foundation of law enforcement rests the security of this government."

BIBLE STUDENTS
QUESTIONED AS TO
WHY LOVE IS BLIND

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Twenty-one young men and women, members of the Syracuse University Bible club who are either studying for the ministry or to become missionaries, have answered the question "Why is Love Blind?" The question was propounded at the last meeting of the club here are some of the answers from the women:

"Because he respects other people's feelings."

"No that lovers will not be embarrassed."

"He is too much taken up with the matter in hand to notice other people's feelings."

"He must be blind because he does not profit by his past. Ideologically speaking he has merely recapitulated."

"It's lucky he is blind or he'd work himself to death."

From one of the men came:

"Take a look around the campus at the specimens. If he weren't blind would he have made any such combinations?"

TOM MEIGHAN—RIVOLI

Thomas Meighan, athletic, charming, and with a keen sense of humor, presents his audience, "Cappy Ricks," his latest picture. "Cappy Ricks," based on Peter B. Kyne's famous Saturday Evening Post stories, which closes today at the Rivoli, has added another delightful morsel to his long list of picture successes.

Mr. Meighan is excellent as Matt Pearsley, a seaman's mate, who falls in love with and wins Florio Ricks, daughter of the irascible Cappy. He proves his mettle as a man in two or three fistie encounters which take place in the development of the story. Altogether, his portrayal is one that is enjoyed by everyone. Agnes Ayres is charming as Florio, while Charles Abbe is wholly artistic in his portrayal of Cappy. The support generally is of the highest standard.

"Cappy Ricks," directed by Tom Forman, is one of the most enjoyable pictures seen here in a long while. It is an excellent story of the sea and the photography by Harry Perry leaves little to be desired.

AT THE MAJESTIC

Another signal success can be hung on for Elaine Hammerstein, whose latest picture, "The Way of a Maid," closes its run today at the Majestic. As virtuous Nadia Castleton, the orphaned child of high society, Miss Hammerstein drags us willy-nilly into the most astounding escapades, beginning with a flirtation, innocent and stopping only when confronted with what seems to be social injustice.

Tom Lawlor discovers Nadia in the masquerade dress of a parlor maid, outside of his apartment door, just as he is looking for someone to supply him with bath towels. Having himself just returned from a rather riotous party, his eyesight is none of the best. And Nadia, taking in the situation, mischievously jumps into the part. (Cue takes a hand in the affair, snatching Tom to the heart and tempting Nadia into all sorts of complications in her adopted character of maid. Tom's mother comes east, socially ambitious. Tom begs Nadia to take a position with her as companion and social guide. A sudden collapse in her financial affairs helps Nadia to a decision to take the job. From then on it is a case of extricating herself from a perilous situation.

AT THE RIVIERA

Pauline Frederick's new starring vehicle, "The Sling of the Lash," produced by R.C. Pictures Corporation, is a three-hour power drama with a vigorous punch in every reel and local film devotees are promised a treat when it is screened at the Riviera today.

It is a story wherein the true nobility of womanhood is depicted and in its development every shade of human emotion is touched upon. Pauline Frederick as the wife whose undying devotion to her husband is the keynote of the story paints a portrait that is dominant and unforgettable.

Reformed Church Paper Tells of Significance of the Work Here

The St. John's Reformed church presents a church paper called "The Pastor's Helper," published by Rev. O. Stockmiller. It is full of many interesting church items and carries on the first page the resignation of its pastor, Rev. O. Stockmiller, who became pastor of St. John's Reformed church, La Crosse, in the spring of 1917, resigned in January, 1922, and accepted a call to become pastor of the St. John's Reformed church at Holgate, Ohio. He will preach his farewell sermon on Palm Sunday morning, April 9, and begin work in his new field, either on the last Sunday of April, or the first Sunday of May.

A salient feature in the paper's column is given to the subject, "Our Boy Scouts," under the title "What is this Boy Scout Movement?" Scout Master Sheldon says, "This question has been asked a good many times in La Crosse in the past month, and so I will try to tell as briefly as possible what is expected of a scout. By a scout I mean one who has passed the first-class tests as it can not be expected that because a boy has joined he immediately acquires knowledge."

"To become a scout a boy must take the following oath: On my honor I will do my best.

"1. To do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the scout law."

"2. To help other people at all times."

"3. To keep myself physically fit."

LOCAL HIGH DEFEATED IN HARD FOUGHT GAME BY MADISON QUINTET

Closest Contest Seen in La Crosse for Many Years Goes to Visitors, 19 to 18

TECHNICAL FOUL IN LAST FIVE SECONDS DECIDES GAME

Walsch Scores Winning Point on Free Throw

The La Crosse High met a hard defeat at the hands of the Capital City terrors in the hardest fought game ever seen on the La Crosse floor Friday night. Madison led in the final score by one point which was gained in the last five seconds of play.

Fast Game

Both aggregations displayed the most excellent brand of basketball thus far this season. The play shifted from team to team with astonishing alacrity. Several fouls were called on both sides. Madison being charged up with the greater number, however.

The game started with a rush which was maintained throughout the contest. Madison made several attempts to dribble through the La Crosse defense, and succeeded time and again in piercing the red and black to make a basket. The guarding of Mark Esch for the locals was brilliant and outstanding. When Walsch dribbled in Esch's vicinity, he would be suddenly stopped dead as Esch tackled the ball in a spectacular manner. Walsch and Tallard featured in floor work and scoring for Madison. Walsch's last point from a free throw winning the game. Madison's whole squad worked fast and effectively both on the offensive and defensive. La Crosse did likewise.

Big Crowd Out

A crowd of more than 2,000 spectators witnessed the game with breathless interest, especially in the attempts to score. On several occasions Referee Nahr was forced to call time out to quiet the uproar. When La Crosse put in the basket which tied the game, the mob went wild with noise and cheering. The referee had to stop the game to clear the floor of spectators.

Foul Decides

Through a technicality of Captain Hargreave in the last five seconds of play, a foul was called which Walsch made good, winning the game. The score at the first half was Madison 11, and La Crosse 11. The final score stood 19 to 18.

Hargreave made eight out of 16 free throws and Walsch nine out of 13. Weigant was taken out for four personal fouls. Kosbab taking his place for the last quarter. Tubbs sank the most field goals for La Crosse, while Madison's points were divided between Walsch and Tallard.

The lineup for Madison was: Walsch, center; Tallard, forwards; Wheeler, center; Osweil and Busley, guards, and Malone, sub for Osweil.

Lineup for La Crosse: Hargreave and Holley, forwards; Tubbs, center; Weigant and Esch, guards; Kosbab took Weigant's place the last quarter.

Ringling also was named the lessee of Madison Square Garden and president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, which controls the property indicating Rickard's withdrawal from any active interest in the enterprise.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Despite the sensational shooting of Hank Marino last night when he totaled 1212 for five games in the match against Alton Lindsey of Hammond, Conn., in the world's classic championship bowling tournament here the Chicagoan was still in second place today in number of points won when play started. His total was 328 20-60 for eight games while St. Thomas, also of Chicago, had 321 18-50 for the same number of games.

Harry Thomas of Bradock, Pa., was third with 324 49-50 for 75 games and Frank Kufner of Chicago held fourth place with 325 5-50.

NORMAL BASKETEERS MEET RIVER FALLS IN 2ND GAME TONIGHT

Locals in Fine Trim for Contest With Northern Quint; Won First Game, 27 to 14

La Crosse Normal will meet the fast River Falls Normal school five for the second time this season tonight in the normal school gymnasium. The locals are in good fighting trim for the game, which promises to be one of the fastest of the year. Though they were defeated by the Keokucks in the first game, 27 to 14, the River Falls aggregation can always be depended upon to come back strong and furnish the stiffest opposition that they can possibly put up.

Friendly Rivalry

Though the score of the game at River Falls was heavily in favor of the La Crosse team, the game was hotly contested throughout. La Crosse and River Falls have always been the keenest of rivals, in athletics, but in spite of the rivalry, relations between the two schools have always been very friendly. Last year the northerners took both basketball games and a football game. This year they won in football on the local field, but have already dropped one basketball game.

Important Game

Though not a championship game, the result of tonight's contest will determine largely the standing of the La Crosse Normal school in the race for the conference title. Oshkosh is reported not to have lost a game yet this season, which places them on an equal basis with the locals.

NEW YORK.—Jack Britton, world's welterweight boxing champion, and David Shade of San Francisco, fought fifteen rounds to a draw.

Thirteen Arrested in Sensational Raids at Oshkosh

OSHKOSH, Wis.—Following a sensational booze raid made in this city Wednesday night in which thirteen persons were arrested, the scene shifted last night to the Darrow farm, east of Omro village, where enforcement officers, accompanied by Elmer Severson, the village marshal, made a search and found a complete apparatus for making whiskey. They arrested Alexander Schick, who lives on the farm with his brother, who runs the place. A copper wash-boiler and several bottles of moonshine were confiscated. Schick pleaded guilty in municipal court here today and paid a fine of $250 and costs. In a raid on the so-called "soft drink parlor" of Casimir Berendt, who later pleaded guilty to possessing intoxicating liquor and paid a heavy fine, enforcement officers demanded that the proprietor allow them to look into a player piano, which was locked. He denied having the key. When the top of the piano was forced open a large number of bottles were found, each containing moonshine whiskey. Twenty-one bottles of various sizes and shapes were in the piano.

BADGER DIVORCEE WEDS IN MINNESOTA MARRIAGE ANNULLED

Hans Wilson Granted Decree by
Higbee; Woman Remarries
Before Year Has Expired

Hans Wilson's marriage to Mrs. May Wilson was annulled by Judge Higbee in circuit court Saturday. Wilson, in his complaint, stated that he married May Lathrop at Potosi, Minn., June 10, 1918. Mrs. Lathrop had previously been married to Geo. Lathrop and was divorced from him in Potosi, Minn., Nov. 10, 1917, and had married before a year had expired. In her defense, Mrs. Wilson stated that she had been advised by a lawyer while living in Potosi, Minn., that she was a resident of Minnesota and could marry six months after she had obtained her divorce in Wisconsin. William Kight failed to get a divorce from his wife, Josephine, in circuit court Saturday. Kight charged his wife with cruel and abusive treatment and also alleged that his wife refused to cook proper food for him. He also alleged an alleged desertion by his wife several months ago. The court advised him to wait a year before bringing another action.

WILL DEVOTE ENTIRE TIME TO BASEBALL

Landis and after several refusals, finally agreed under conditions that he remain on the bench, too. He insisted that his salary be only $12,500, explaining that his judicial income would bring the total to $50,000.

Although 58 years old, Judge Landis has always been known as a boy at heart and a lover of all forms of sport. The baseball magnates urged him to resign his judgeship for the sake of the American boy, and it was this plea which finally won over the jurist.

Fearful and Respected
The resignation of Judge Landis takes from the federal bench one of the most feared and at the same time the most respected judges in the country. His unique conduct in court, where he frequently took the cases out of the examining room, and took over the examination of witnesses himself, has made him to be feared by all lawyers. At the same time his reputation of administering justice regardless of the technicalities of the law, brought him universal respect.

He was vigorous in his attitude against anti-Americans during the war. His son, Reed Landis, was serving in the British air service and the judge several times tried to obtain war work which would send him across, but failed. In every war case brought before him where the defendant was found guilty, the judge imposed drastic sentences and scathingly denounced anyone who seemed un-American. This was particularly true in the trials of J. W. W. socialists and pacifists held before him.

Urged Kaiser's Execution
In one speech during the war he advocated that the German Kaiser and his six sons be executed by allied firing squads, "out of justice to humanity."

Judge Landis was one of the thirty persons to whom bombs were mailed on May-day, 1919, and during the 1911 black-hand trials here he received many death threats. Against the wishes of his friends, he insisted on sitting through the trials.

Judge Landis first became nationally famous when he fined the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana $20,000, which decision later was reversed by a higher court.

In the court room the judge always was a picturesque figure, not only because of his flowing white hair, but because of his keen wit. He once paraded "wrist-watched lawyers" and was drastic in his action against the court-room lawyers of "court-room liars," as he called them.

Judge Landis said he had mailed his resignation Saturday, addressing it to President Harding personally.

Born in Ohio
Judge Landis was born in Millville, Ohio, November 20, 1862. The day of the birth, Dr. Abraham Landis, his father, came home wounded from fighting in the civil war in the region of Kennesaw mountain, near Atlanta. "I name him Kennesaw Mountain Landis," the father said, "and may he live up to what the name stands for in history."

He became a grocery clerk at La Crosse, Ind., and later was graduated from Union college of law, Chicago. He practiced in Chicago until 1905, with the exception of two years in Washington as secretary to Secretary of State Gresham. He was appointed to the federal bench March 28, 1905.

Heydler Pleased
NEW YORK.—President John A. Heydler of the National bar expressed gratification Saturday when informed by the Associated Press that Judge Landis had resigned from the bench to devote his entire time to the technical control of professional baseball.

The major and minor leagues and baseball at large are to be congratulated, he said, "on Judge Landis' decision. It means everything for the sport."

PUNCHBOARD OWNER LOSES IN SUIT TO RECOVER PREMIUMS

Iowa Novelty Co. Sought Payment on Goods After Sheriff
Had Seized Punchboard

The first suit to be brought in circuit court as a result of the raids made by the sheriff's office last fall on candy stores and pool halls operating punchboards was called Saturday morning when the Iowa Novelty company of Des Moines, sued Janaki Kanellakes, doing business as Kanellakes Brothers, pool hall and cigar and candy store on Third street, between Main and State, for $300, the alleged value of punchboard premiums left in the Kanellakes store but not paid for.

Janaki Kanellakes, through his lawyer, Otto Schlabach, contended that the punchboard was confiscated by the sheriff's office on September 2, last, and that all the premiums or prizes, consisting of hardware, jewelry and necessities had not been disposed of. The defense also set up the claim that the operation of punchboards had been declared illegal in a city ordinance. Kanellakes was fined $50 and $5 costs in county court on September 9 on charges of operating a gambling device, namely a punchboard. According to the agreement between Kanellakes and the novelty company, Kanellakes was to receive 40 per cent of the proceeds of the punchboard.

The court rendered judgment in favor of Kanellakes, stating that the novelty company had no legal grounds for action. The sheriff's office also was instructed to get the premiums or prizes that were not disposed of and turn them over to the court. The Iowa Novelty company's case was handled by Frank E. Withrow.

FIREMAN ON 'Q' HELD AS ROBBER OF WIFE'S JEWELS

Mills had told him that he had come to Peppin on the afternoon of the robbery.

Girl Who Got Ring Called

Miss Bertha Meyers, 1008 Badger street was called by District Attorney Reid to tell what she knew of Mills and a diamond ring he had given her the address, Senator La Follette said about two weeks ago. She said she had known Mills for about a year and that two weeks ago Mills had shown her a small diamond ring and told her he had bought it from a Main street jeweler but did not know how it would fit as he "had to guess at the size." Miss Meyers said she could not get the ring on her finger. Mills then took the ring back, according to Miss Meyers, saying he would get one that would fit.

When District Attorney asked Miss Meyers what conversations she had with the police, she professed to be unable to tell just what was said. She remembered, however, that Chief Webster and Detective Fitzsimmons were "unfriendly" to her, that Detective Fitzsimmons talked gruffly to her and accused her of having rings that had been stolen and that she should return them.

Couldn't Identify Rings

Miss Meyers said that she had shown the ring Mills gave her to Leora Seabolt, Mabel Meyers, Mary Lister and Byron Hyde. When Mills was arrested he told the police he had the ring he had given Miss Meyers at his home. He went there with Fitzsimmons and produced a solitaire ring. The district attorney, at the hearing, had Miss Meyers try on the rings. Mrs. Foster's diamond ring would not go all the way down Miss Meyers' finger while the other ring was much too large. She was unable to identify either ring as the one Mills had given her and then taken back.

E. W. Parker, jeweler called as an expert witness said Mrs. Foster's ring had a total value of about $35 while the second ring, the one Mills told the police he had given to Miss Meyers, was worth possibly 75 cents. George Irvine, also called to the stand could not identify Mrs. Foster's ring as one that had been sold by his store but laughed when asked if he had sold Mills the 75-cent ring, declaring he didn't carry such a line of stock.

Nelson Foster was called to the stand for a few minutes to tell about way freight on the Burlington on Feb. 2. He said there was none on that day between Hazel and Pepin. Fred H. Hartwell, attorney for Mills, asked if Mills couldn't have ridden on any other train, and Nelson said he had plenty of chances to do so but not on a way freight.

Mr. Hartwell did not call Mills to the stand on Friday.

TEMPLES OF EGYPT

The ancient Egyptian year, from which ours is derived, had a perfectly natural beginning. It always commenced on the day when Sirius and the sun rose together. The temples of Egypt were really observatories, built to face this or that star as it rose. They were more or less elaborate, but all had as their fundamental plan a long, narrow passage down which the star's rays came, and a dark chamber at the far end, where the priest made the observation and where the image was kept. The Egyptians discovered that the year had an extra quarter of a day in it. They did it by noting that on some years Sirius and the sun rose almost together, while on others there was an appreciable difference in time, and that these changes repeated themselves every five years. They found the length of the year to be within eleven minutes of its true value, which was a remarkable thing to do with the primitive appliances they had at hand.

Cheering
"Did your doctor seem encouraged about your condition?"
"Yes, I have an idea he thinks I'm going to be one of the most profitable patients he's ever had."—Boston Transcript.

In a Wet Climate
Teacher—"What's the difference between a pint and a quart?"
Son of a Tippler—"A pint is what makes you happy; a quart is what makes you drunk."

"LITTLE WILLIE" GETS A SHAVE—SOME HOT SPORTS—AND SOME COLD—ON BRINK OF DEATH AT SEA

STYLE FORECAST—Summer bathers will wear what winter bathers are wearing at Palm Beach. Here is Miss F. H. Scott, Chicago, in one of the popular new gingham suits. It is purple and white.

HELEN B. HAPPY—Miss Helen B. Happy of Boston, is having a glorious time at Palm Beach. She says, "Swim like me and you'll be happy, too." So, boys, swim like Helen B. Happy!

THE PHOTOGRAPHER was right on the job when the crew of the Thetis was rescued after the British freighter went aground on Peaked Hill Bar, the "Graveyard of Cape Cod." Pounding waves threatened it with destruction. Coast guard shot a line across the bow of the boat and the breeches buoy was rigged up. The crew rode to shore, one by one, by means of the trolley-like arrangement shown above.

FIRST PICTURE of the crew of the Northern Pacific, rescued just a few minutes before the burning ship sank off Cape May. Ships which answered the S. O. S. took the rescued men to Norfolk, Va.

THE NEW FAD at Ormond Beach, Fla., is having afternoon tea in the surf. In their wet bathing suits and with the water swirling about their feet Dorothy Johnston, Castleton, Vt., (left) and Kathryn de Ronde, Englewood, N. J., are having their "surf tea."

GEORGE COOK, of Riverside, Ill., has broken a six-months call to saddle and bridle and says, "It beats a pony all hollow."

THIS FILIPINO is celebrating his funeral in true Igorote fashion. The dead man is tied to his bamboo-chair coffin by his turban and loops under the arm. The Igorotes still go to the hereafter sitting up.

NEW COIFFURES—Girls, if you'd have your hair dressed in the latest styles have a look at the above coiffures. At top, the permanent wave with bobbed effect; center, debutante wave with curls; below, fan wave with swirls and curves. These were approved at the recent convention of the New York Hairdressers' Association.

SUCCEEDS HUSBAND—Princess Kalaiauala of Honolulu has taken the place on the Hawaiian Rehabilitation Commission made vacant by the death of her husband. She lived in Washington when he was Hawaiian delegate to congress.

ACROSS CONTINENT—William G. Stebbins, 17, has just arrived in New York from Los Angeles. He wore out nineteen pairs of crutches on the long bike. Now he says he's going to cover the forty-eight states on a bicycle.

TWIN BOYS were born to Mrs. Lottie Baker of Cincinnati while an ambulance was racing the stork to General Hospital. Now there are six boys and six girls in the Baker family. Miss Eva Work, hospital nurse, is holding the twins.

THE RUINS of the Lexington Hotel, Richmond, Va., are still being searched for a number of missing. More than a score were injured and a number killed. Five firemen were hurt when the walls collapsed. The trucks above hauled debris away before it had cooled to facilitate work of rescuers.

AN AIR TRAFFIC COP—The latest device installed in the traffic control tower at the London Air Station is a wireless telephone extension which allows the operator to communicate with any express flying between London and the coast. From a platform of the tower the "traffic cop" directs, through a megaphone, movements of planes on the field.

$25.00 WRAP—Canadian furriers are using mannequins to display their wares. This sable coat was exhibited on Dufferin Terrace, Quebec. If Dad or Hubby buys it, it will set him back $25,000.

PALM BEACH STUFF—Many fashions for next summer are originating now at Palm Beach. Mrs. Samuel Rossiter Betts, New York, is wearing a gown of soft silk with black and orchid stripes. The giraffe is of jet squares. The Napoleon bar of black moire is draped with a Spanish veil. Black and white shoes and hose complete the costume.

NEW SPORT—Miss Lois Huggins doesn't need a surf to go surf riding. She hitchhikes her toboggan to the tail of an airplane at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C. and glides across the snow. The plane is on skids, too.

Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR. EASY TO DRIVE

One of the outstanding features of the Ford car and a contributing cause of its deserved popularity is the ease and facility with which the average driver can control and successfully operate it under the most trying conditions. This is due to the proportioning and design of several features of which the following are most important:

Gear change by means of foot pedal action instead of with foot operated clutch and hand operated gear shift lever.

Possibility of quick shift from low speed ahead to reverse and back again without shifting of gears.

Impossibility of failure to accomplish gear shifts.

One of the greatest control advantages of the Ford car is the facility with which gear changes are made and the ability to control its speeds, through foot pedals and brake band action. Gear shifts are readily made without removing the hands from the steering wheel and by automatic action of the feet, allowing the driver's attention to be concentrated on the road ahead, on traffic, steering or road conditions as the case may require.

The operation and control is particularly advantageous under heavy road conditions, such as those of sand or mud. This is because of the light weight of the car coupled with the fact that the low speed ratio is high in proportion to the weight and the added fact that the relative effect of the engine torque in driving through the rear wheels is correspondingly high. The possibility of quick shift from low speed ahead to reverse and back again permits "rocking the car" forward and back as can be done with no other automobile. This is usually sufficient to extricate the Ford from the heaviest sand and mud.

Another outstanding feature is the impossibility of failure to accomplish gear shift as with the Ford transmission there is no chance to clash gears and the driver need not worry about not getting into gear and, thereby, being caught in traffic with his engine disengaged.
